Hather Thompson Balm, Business, Construction & Energy Technology, noted that these programs have been updated to include pathways that lead to both the College of Business programs and the Health Administration program. The programs have been cleaned up a bit and the objectives have been made clearer.

They also have two AS programs in Human Resources. Above is the former "COB Articulated Emphasis" which has been renamed. Students will also be able to articulate to both the COB and Health Administration. The other program, the Human Resources
